Bbbb Numb. 1902.

The Daily Courant.

Tueſday, March 23. 1708.

London, March 23.

Yeſterday arriv'd from Holland, the Mail of Friday laſt.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated March 30.

Perpignan, March 16.

ALL the Troops quarter'd hereabouts are order'd to march towards Bolo on the Tech, to encamp there till the arrival of the Duke de Noailles. 450 of our Miquelets who went towards Barcarra to get Intelligence, were attack'd by a Detachment of the Enemy near Navarra, and after having loſt above half their Number, were oblig'd to betake themſelves to the Hills of Valdamines, where being coop'd up, and wanting Proviſions, they were forc'd to ſurrender at Diſcretion. The Storing the Magazines in Roſes is continued; from which 'tis conjectur'd that on the Arrival of the D. of Orleans, the Siege of Gironne will be undertaken.

From the Amſterdam Courant, dated March 29.

Turin, March 10. Yeſterday Prince Emanuel of Savoy Count de Soiſſons, Nephew of Prince Eugene, returning on Horſeback from Hunting, and croſſing the Square before our Citadel, ſaw the Counts Ruello and Carpenei ſtanding in a Balcony of the Palace of the Marquis Dogliani, who call'd to him and deſir'd him to come up to them: Alighting, he went up to them, and after a little Time a Lady coming likewiſe into the Balcony, it broke under them, and the Prince, Count Ruello, and the Lady fell down with it into the Street; but Count Carpenei catching hold of a piece of Iron-Work, hung by it till he was taken off ſafe. Our Duke having Notice of this Accident, immediately went to the Prince, and ſtaid with him all Night: His Highneſs had not any Bone broken, but 'tis feared the hurt he has receiv'd inwardly will prove mortal: This Morning he was ſo bad that it was judg'd neceſſary to adminiſter to him the laſt Sacraments. Count Ruello and the Lady, are much wounded and bruis'd.

Turin, March 14. Prince Emanuel of Savoy is on the mending Hand, and judg'd to be out of Danger.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated, March 30.

Metz, March 20. The 18th in the Morning arriv'd in the Neighbourhood of this City, 12 Regiments of Horſe, and in the Evening 8 Battallions of Foot, all from Alſace. Yeſterday in the Afternoon theſe Forces continu'd their March, by the Way of Luxembourg, for Namur.

From the Amſterdam Courant, dated March 30.

Liſle, March 27. Orders are come from Court, for all the Troops in theſe Parts to hold themſelves in a Readineſs to march at the firſt Notice. 'Tis reported here, that the King deſigns to have two Armies in the Netherlands; one of 50000 Men under the Duke of Vendome on the Scheld, the other of 20000 under the Elector of Bavaria on the Maeſe; which laſt 'tis ſupps'd will be reinforc'd by a good Body of Men from Alſace and the Country of Luxembourg. The Allies keep Men hard at Work on the Fortifications of Menin and Courtray.

From the Amſterſtam Courant, dated March 29.

Liege, March 25. Letters from Paris, ſay the King of France had order'd publick Prayers to be made throughout his Kingdom, for the ſucceſs of the pretended P. of Wales's Expedition; that his Majeſty to ſupport that Enterprize, had given Direction for haſtening the further naval Preparations that are making in ſeveral of his Harbours; and That he propoſes by this Diverſion to gain an Opportunity of driving the Allies clear out of Spain, and acting Offenſively in the Netherlands.

Ghent, March 25. We have Advice, that the King of France, ſince the fitting out the Dunkirk Squadron, has come to an Agreement with the Inhabitants of Tournay and Liſle, that inſtead of furniſhing Workmen to make the Line deſign'd ſome time ſince between thoſe two Cities, they ſhall raiſe a Regiment of Dragoons for his Service.

Paris, March 26. 'The King has receiv'd no 'Account of the Fleet ſince their Sailing. A Report 'was ſpread, that 4 Scotch Lords were arriv'd at 'Dunkirk: But we begin to doubt the Truth of it, 'becauſe there is no Talk concerning them at Ver'ſailles. Letters from Spain affirm, that the Portu'gueſe Troops, notwithſtanding the Intreaties of 'the Archduke to ſtay in Catalonia, have imbark'd 'to return to Lisbon. The Number of the Ene'my's Forces being conſiderably leſſened by their 'Departure, the Duke of Orleans has given Order 'for all the French Troops to draw together with all 'Expedition, to the End he may make Advantage 'of his Superiority which 'tis pretended amounts to '10000 Men. Four Days ago the King ſent for 'the Duke of Vendome to come to him, and ſince 'that time has had ſeveral ſecret Conferences with 'him. He will ſpeedily ſet out for the Army, and 'tis reported he and the Elector of Bavaria are to 'act with two Bodies ſeparately.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated March 30.

Paris, March 26. Letters from Madrid of the 13th Inſtant adviſe, that the Duke of Orleans arriv'd there the 11th; and that the Armies will ſpeedily take the Field. 'Tis reported for certain, that the Land-Forces ſent with the Dunkirk Squadron on the Expedition to Scotland conſiſt of 7000 Men including Officers; that there is on board that Squadron 4 Millions in Money; and that beſides French general Officers, the Pretended Prince of Wales has with him 4 of his own Nation, viz. Dorrington, Richard Hamilton, Skelton, and Galmoy. The Duke of Vendome will ſpeedily ſet out for Liſle, whither the French and Swiſs-Guards, together with all the reſt of the Troops of the King's Houſhold, are to begin their March by the 9th of next Month.

Hague, March 30. 'The 28th arriv'd 3 Mails 'from England; and the Pacquets for the States 'were immediately diſpatch'd hither by an Expreſs. 'The Publick, and the States in particular, are ex'ceedingly pleas'd with the Joynt-Addreſs of both 'Houſes of Parliament, and their two ſeparate Ad'dreſſes to the Queen, occaſion'd by the Enterprize 'of France in Favour of the Sr. Germains Preten'der: Their High Mightineſſes (who have at all 'Times ſhewn a hearty Concern for the true Inte'reſt, and conſequently the ſolid Proſperity, of En'gland,) appear extremely ſatisfied with the No'tice obligingly taken, not only by the Parliament 'to the Publick, but by her Majeſty to their High'Mightineſſes Miniſter, of their Vigilance and Zeal on this Occaſion. The 10 Engliſh Battalions embark'd at Orford, were to put to Sea the 28th, under the Convoy of 10 Britiſh and Dutch Men of War. Major-General Cadogan does not go with them, but is to return to Bruſſels: The Britiſh Secretary reſiding here, preſented a Memorial Yeſterday to the States, to notify to them the Imbarcation of theſe Battalions, and that their Room will be ſupply'd by other Troops. In the mean time 'tis adviſ'd that the Earl of Melfort and ſome other Scots of Quality are at Dunkirk, making new Preparations to ſupport the Pretender in his Enterprize againſt Scotland. We have ſufficient Information, that the Pope has furniſh'd that Pretended Prince with a Million of Crowns: Perhaps the Allies will acknowledge the Favour his Holineſs deſign'd them, by ordering their Fleet when in the Mediterranean to call upon him for a like Sum, towards reimburſing them the Charge they have been at in fitting out a Squadron to oppoſe that of Dunkirk: We have Intelligence from a good Hand, that the Court of France are in great Pain for the latter, beginning to fear that the Engliſh have attack'd them. The Princes of Germany give Ground to hope, that they will exert themſelves with more Vigour the approaching Campaign than in the paſt, by contributing what they ought to the Proſecution of the War againſt France. In particular, the Elector Palatine ſeems reſolv'd to diſtinguiſh his Zeal. One of his Generals is coming hither with a Commiſſion to their High Mightineſſes; and two Days ago his Miniſter had a long Conference with their Deputies, touching the Efforts which his Electoral Higneſs deſigns to make in Conjunction with the Emperour: They have project'd to ſend between them for their Part to the Army of the Empire, full 24000 Men. The Miniſter of Heſſe-Caſſel is frequently in Converſation with the great Penſionary, about the March of the Landgrave his Maſter's Troops to ſerve in Brabant. He has taken this Occaſion to inſiſt on the Payment of ſome Arrears. Upon the Declaration in the Addreſs of the Houſe of Commons of Great Britain that they will make good whatever Charge her Majeſty ſhall be at to replace the Troops ſhe has recall'd from abroad &c. the Count de Legnaſco has judg'd it ſeaſonable to go over to England, to offer ſome Troops on the Part of King Auguſtus; and he ſet out from hence laſt Night, to imbark accordingly.

Deale, March 21. This Morning ſail'd the Woolwich for Oſtend. The reſt of the Queen's Ships mention'd in my former, remain in the Downes.
